The Sunday School attendance in Somerset April 25 was 2,988, Methodists leading with 611.

There is a pretty straight tip that there will be only five candidates for governor by this time next week.

The attendance at Madisonville's five Sunday Schools April 25 was 1,617. Baptist 602 and Christians second with 505.

Why should not the Dixie Highway go from Chicago to Florida by the same route the Dixie Flyers go by rail? That would of course take it through the three villes—Evansville, Hopkinsville and Nashville.

U. S. Navy Statistics.

Secretary Daniels, in a letter to President Garfield, of Williams University, outlines the improvements in the navy, stating that there are now 225 vessels in commission and 101 in reserve, and that there are 4,355 line, staff and warrant officers and 53,171 enlisted men. It is shown that reductions in expenses have been made and at the same time large appropriations for new warships have been secured.

STANLEY'S CAMPAIGN

Will Be Opened At Frankfort On Next Saturday May 1.

OUTLINE OF HIS SPEECH. No Lack of "Hot Stuff" on Tap.

Louisville, Ky., April 28.—Former Congressman A. O. Stanley this week opened headquarters in the Galt house at Louisville, with former State Auditor S. W. Hager, of Owensboro, in charge, and he has announced that he will make his opening speech at Frankfort next Saturday, May 1. He says he is going to say some things that will have an effect on this campaign similar in effect to the dumping of a bottle of tabasco into a bowl of soup.

This week made the declaration that he is not running for the Democratic nomination for governor in the interest of any group of distilleries, brewers or saloons or saloon organizations; that the liquor question has been settled under the county unit local option law to the extent that it is not paramount as an issue in this campaign, as contended by the state-widens; that there are more vital questions for the attention of the people which may be kept in obscurity if the plans of the state-widens are successful, and that he intends to unfold the story of the frame-up as he proceeds on the stump. Stanley has made engagements for Monday, May 3, at Newcastle, Henry county; Tuesday, May 4, at Owingsville, Bath county, and Monday, May 17, at Pikeville, Pike county. Judge S. W. Hager says that "Judge O'Rear's visit to Western Kentucky as the team-mate of Senator Beckham in the behalf of state-wide prohibition has made Stanley 10,000 votes, at least."

Another angle that is being presented as a possible determination on the part of Senator Beckham and Judge O'Rear is that the latter may become the opponent of Senator Ollie M. James, who is leaving San Francisco next Thursday for a trip to Hawaii with the congressional delegation. If Senator James had joined forces with Senator Beckham in the support of a candidate for governor, "I am constrained to believe that he would not have undertaken the move he is now making. But James did not elect to play the game with him, and the feeling that he may not be able to find a man in his own organization working under the Democratic label to take James' measure, Senator Beckham is, as I see it, trying to create a 'dry party,' made up of Democrats and Republicans to support Democrats when and where Democrats are strongest, and Republicans are strongest."

COOLER WEATHER NEAR

Hot Spell to Be Broken by Sunday, Weekly Forecast.

Washington, April 28.—Generally fair weather throughout the country, except for some thunderstorms and scattered showers, was predicted today by the Weather Bureau for the week beginning Wednesday. The hot spell over the eastern half of the country will be broken by Saturday or Sunday and cooler weather will prevail.

Feeling Good.

Oglesby Soyars has found his gold watch lost a few days ago. It was a valuable watch, and an heirloom, highly prized. It was found where he had dropped it in a field. He advertised it in the Kentuckian and then took a successful hunt and found it.

MATINEE RACES NEXT

Will Be Resumed At The Fair Grounds, Beginning Saturday.

BIG PROGRAM OF EVENTS. A Small Admission Will Be Charged To Help Pay Expenses.

The matinee races will be resumed at the Pennyroyal Fair Grounds next Saturday. These races were a big success all last summer and the owners of horses are ready to enter into them again this season with great enthusiasm.

The racing Saturday will begin at 2 o'clock p. m. and there will be an interesting program, which has not yet been completed.

The Third Regiment Band will be on hand to make music.

The nominal charge of 10 cents will be made to help pay expenses.

COUNCIL TO-NIGHT

Will Arrange For School Election and to Issue Licenses.

The council will meet in called session to-night for the purpose of closing up the affairs of the fiscal year ending April 20.

Applications for saloon and billiard licenses for the next fiscal year will be acted upon. The question of buying a lot for a colored school building will be considered, school matters generally will be gone into and officers will be named to hold the school election Saturday.

The terms of three trustees expire—L. E. Fowler, Ira L. Smith and Jas. B. Braden. Mr. Braden has been on the board 27 years and he will not be a candidate for re-election. Chairman Ira L. Smith also announces that he will not stand for re-election. L. E. Fowler, J. H. Cate and T. W. Morris are candidates.

Oil and Water.

Some of the neighboring cities are getting street oil at less than 4 cents a gallon and applying it at cost. It takes half a gallon of oil to sprinkle a square yard of macadam street surface. The average street in Hopkinsville has about 27 feet of surface, or 3 yards to the linear foot. At even 6 cents a gallon put on, the cost of oil should be about 9 cents a front foot, or 4½ cents on each side. If oil can be had at this reasonable price, the Kentuckian prefers oil to water for many reasons. This is cheaper than the price of water sprinkling at 25 cents a week for each property owner, but many citizens are so prejudiced against a sticky asphalt and oil mixture that they bitterly oppose its application at any price. Real street oil would be less objectionable.

Can Go Barefooted.

Indianapolis, Apr. 28.—The board of school commissioners at a meeting championed the cause of the barefooted boy, when letters were read in which the request was made that the board establish a rule compelling all children to wear shoes and stockings to school. Every member of the board denounced the suggestion. One of the commissioners said that to enforce such a rule would be "to place the boy in torment," and would deprive the schoolboy of "one of the inherent rights of childhood."

Suicide at Ashland.

Ashland, Ky., April 28.—James H. Hawes, 26 years old, an employee of the spoke factory at Normal, near Ashland, swallowed a quantity of poison and died within less than a half hour.

CLEAN UP A SUCCESS

Lasted For a Week And Nearly 800 Loads Hauled.

THE CITY SPICK AND SPAN. Took Whole Week of Work Instead of Two Days As Planned.

Sanitary Inspector Crawley finished cleaning up the city yesterday, having had 17 wagons busy since last week. These wagons made only 6 loads a day, owing to the long haul necessary to get the trash out of the city. During the entire period 700 or 800 loads were hauled off and dumped in a low place to the east of the Cedar Grove.

PROF. FOSTER WITHDREW

And Supported His Friend Prof. Vinson for President.

The Christian County delegation which returned Saturday night from Louisville report a very pleasant trip and say that the K. E. A. was the largest and best educational meeting ever held in the Commonwealth of Kentucky. About 90 persons went from Christian county to the K. E. A. This is one of the best and largest delegations that has ever gone from this county.

Last Thursday the Courier-Journal stated that Supt. L. E. Foster would likely be a candidate for the presidency of the K. E. A. who at the time was strongly urged to allow his name to go before the Convention. He had a great following among the County Superintendents, Trustees, and Rural Teachers as they felt that a County Superintendent should be elected this time. However, when Mr. T. W. Vinson, who has been secretary of the K. E. A. for ten years and who has done more than any other one person to make it what it is come out, Mr. Foster declined to oppose him. Mr. Foster and Mr. Vinson are personal friends and the friends of one are the friends of the other, so in recognition of Mr. Vinson's long and faithful services Mr. Foster would not permit his name to come before the convention, but on the other hand nominated Mr. Vinson, thereby indicating that he desired his supporters to support Mr. Vinson. Not only Mr. Foster's friends but many in the Convention who did not know him stated that they thought that he did the graceful thing at this time, and assured him that he would be president of the K. E. A. at some future date and that they would take particular interest in helping to elect him. Supt. Foster stated that there was likely to become a fight between the county teachers and the city teachers and his withdrawal eliminated any such fight, which, of course, is detrimental to educational meetings of this kind. He stated also, that he was afraid all the time of a political fight, as this is campaign year and the candidates were thick at this meeting.

They do not come in an endeavor to take from the city but to be friendly and helpful.

SERVED ON BOTH SIDES

"Uncle Jim" Spencer, of Lee County, Fought Under Two Flags.

Lexington, Ky., April 28.—"Uncle Jim" Spencer, Sr., who is dead at his home at Filmore, Lee county, in his seventy-ninth year enjoyed the distinction of being one of the only two men in Kentucky who served in both the Union and Confederate armies during the Civil War and who had an honorable discharge from both.

He was the only man in Lee county, so far as is known, who responded to the first call of President Lincoln for ninety day volunteers and his command was one of the first that took the field in '61. When his three months expired he declined to re-enlist, received an honorable discharge, and returned home, but almost immediately afterward joined the fortunes of the Confederacy, fighting under the bonny blue flag until the close of the war, when he received a second honorable discharge.

It was the slavery issue and the pressure brought by his home people that caused him to change his allegiance, it is said. He was one of the leading members of the Baptist church at Filmore and besides seven children, he leaves a number of grandchildren and a host of friends to mourn his loss.

All Eyes on Christian.

Christian county farmers figure their savings alone since the work of farm demonstration was established at one hundred thousand dollars annually. I believe that as much could be saved to the agricultural interests of Fayette through the same agency and co-operation every year.

This striking utterance is from Dr. Fred Mutchler, head of the Extension Department of the Kentucky Experiment Station.

Seriously Ill.

Capt. L. D. Hockersmith, one of the oldest citizens of the town, has been seriously ill for the past several days and his condition was unchanged at press time yesterday afternoon. A few days ago he was injured in a fall which resulted in complications that may result in his death. Capt. Hockersmith is loved by everyone in Madisonville and Hopkinsville and his many friends will be grieved to learn of his illness.—Madisonville Hustler.

Oil For Owensboro.

Owensboro, Ky., April 28.—The city of Owensboro will purchase one hundred thousand gallons of oil for the streets this week. The bids for the oil have been received and the contract will be signed this week.

BY LAND

French Troops Occupy Turkish Town on The Asiatic Side of Straits.

THE GERMANS HOLD GROUND. Berlin Claims That British Attempt to Retake Lost Position Fails.

London, April 28.—On the narrow, rocky Gallipoli peninsula in Turkey and on a restricted front stretching northward from Ypres in Belgium, two of the most vital struggles of the war are in progress. Neither has reached a stage which would permit of a prediction of the ultimate result.

In the Gallipoli peninsula fighting, a picturesque assortment of allied troops landed Sunday, supported by the fire of the warships are trying to batter their way through thousands of German-officered Turks in an effort to force the Dardanelles—the main gateway of the Ottoman empire—and reach Constantinople.

According to the British claim, the attack is progressing, but a Turkish communication declares that, although the allies landed forces at four points, these forces are being beaten back to the coast, while the Moslems in the French ranks are deserting the tricolor and casting their lot with their coreligionists.

Equally contradictory are the official statements concerning the fighting in the vicinity of Ypres. It would appear that the German offensive north of that city, which brought them a gain of nearly three miles, has reached its limit, and that, although the Germans hold most of the ground they gained, the question now is whether they can retain it.

The British troops are now said to have taken the offensive and are striking toward St. Julien, which the Germans captured, while the French on the British left not only have pushed the Germans from Lizerne, their new lodgment on the west bank of the canal nearest Calais, but have crossed the canal and hold Het Sas, on the east bank.

The German official communication which records no progress from the German troops, admits that the British took the offensive toward St. Julien, but insists that the successive attacks broke down.

Some sections of the British press profess the belief that the crisis in the new battle, or series of battles, for the French coast has passed, but others are of the opinion that the end is not in sight.

"The fate of Calais still hangs in the balance," says the Evening News. "The Germans are not disheartened. They are not starving, and they are capable of a great sustained offensive in Flanders."

French troops have occupied Kum-Kaleh, a Turkish town on the Asiatic side of the entrance to the Dardanelles.

For One of The Tucker Twins, Under an Auto.

Elon Tucker, aged five years, one of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Tucker's twins, was run over by an automobile driven by M. O. Kimerling, Tuesday afternoon, in front of the Princess theatre, and had a miraculous escape. The little fellow fell under the car, but it passed over him without the wheels hitting him. He was dragged a little distance, but, except for a scratch on one knee, escaped injury and was up and about as usual yesterday. Mr. Tucker, who is the well known insurance man, was out of town at the time.

Kites in Life-Saving Work.

The employment of kites for extending life lines to vessels in distress at sea has been suggested as having a marked advantage in certain instances over the methods ordinarily followed, says Popular Mechanics.
Instead of throwing a line to a sinking ship by using a rocket, which sometimes miscarries, it is proposed that this be accomplished by attaching a trailing cable to a series of box kites which from a windward position might easily be directed over the middle of a ship. After reaching the line, it would only be necessary for those aboard a sinking steamer to draw in a hawser with this lighter rope and attach it in a position which would allow the operation of a breeches buoy.

CLOCKS WENT ON STRIKE

But It Was in Philadelphia, So There
Was Not Much Worry Over Tardy Timepieces.

Several thousand Philadelphians, peering from trolley car windows at familiar clocks on familiar buildings, wondered what "in all conscience" was the matter with the home alarm clock; or, if there was nothing the matter with the alarm clock, what "in all conscience" the "old man" at the office would say when they dropped in three-quarters of an hour early for that eight o'clock appointment.

As a matter of fact, there was nothing the matter with the alarm clock, and the thousands slid into their typewriter chairs or climbed on to their bookkeeping stools just inside the usual 2:37 seconds.

The real trouble was that fully a thousand Philadelphia street and factory clocks had stopped near 7:15
a. m. They were the timepieces which are regulated by Western Union telegraph wires from the United States observatory in Washington, and water had somehow leaked in and let the current out of the wires. New circuits were arranged, which set all the clocks going again by one o'clock in the afternoon.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

HONEY AND WINEOF THE HOLY LAND

It has been rightly said that the great charm of the Holy Land is its antiquity. To this might be added its infinite variety, for every town and hamlet has a charm of its own—something that singles it out for special notice and attention and makes it different from its neighbors.

For instance, Jaffa, the gateway of the Holy Land, is famed the world over for its delicious oranges, and, incidentally, for its honey and wine.

Joshua described the country as a land flowing with milk and honey.
Substitute wine for milk, and the ancient pronouncement is still applicable.

It is Palestine's unique geographical position that enables her to produce such fine honey. Here the flora of three different continents meet, and this fact, coupled with other circumstances, has made the conditions in Palestine ideal for honey culture.
Some time ago two brothers in Jaffa had an spy on novel lines. They conceived the ingenious idea of furnishing the bees with material for honey-making purposes throughout eight months of the year. Camping first at a low altitude, they waited until the flowers of that locality were over, and then conveyed the hives on camels to a higher place, thus following up the consecutive blossoming of different flowers. They were even able to separate the produce of these overworked bees into "orange-blossom honey," "thyme honey," and so on, with each surpassing flavor. By using modern extraction machinery and replacing the combs, one hundred hives were made to yield no less than six tons of honey in the year. This is nearly three times as much honey per hive as the maximum yield on the great honey farms of Australia and America.—From Wide World Magazine.

ADELE HUGO

Sad and Tragic Life of Author's Daughter Comes To End.

Paris, April 23.—Adele Hugo, youngest daughter of Victor Hugo, died Wednesday at her residence in Suresnes, a suburb of this city, at the age of 85 years.

The sad and tragic life story of Adele Hugo many years ago aroused the sympathy of the entire world. As a girl she was kidnapped at Guernsey by an English officer. All Europe was searched for her parents but they obtained no trace of her whereabouts.

Several months later a girl found wandering alone in the streets of New York, apparently demented, declared "I am the daughter of Victor Hugo." This was the only statement she ever made.

She was sent back to France to her parents but her lips remained sealed until the end and the tragic story of her life never was revealed. She failed to entirely recover her reason and after the death of her father lived a solitary existence in her villa, morose and speaking. When she did consent it never was of the past.

The May Strand Magazine.

The Strand Magazine for May contains among its usual high order of fiction, a story from the Russian on "The Rules of War," and an unusually powerful tale of the great war, "In the Casualty List." Still other war stories include "Why the Gunner Went Ashore," and Richard Marsh's fourth installment of Sam Briggs Becomes Soldier," showing this philosophic and humorous recruit under the baptism of fire. A love story that should find favor is Ben Allen Smith's, "Alice Palmer's Choice." John Foster contributes a short story entitled, "Settled Out of Court," and there is an interesting Norwegian story for children translated into English by E. Dyke, entitled, "How the Sea Became Salt." Heading the list of articles is one, "All About General Joffre," giving a portrait study of the man and a day at the front with the great French commander.

Life's High Ideals.

We have more or less true ideals of what our own human life ought to be—of what opportunities we ought to have for the development of our faculties—of what home and school and college, youth and married life and old age, work and rest, ought to mean for ourselves and our families. MUST HAVE SACKS.

No country would go to war without sacks, and the war could not continue for long if the supply of sacks gave out. They are as vital a necessity as powder and shot. Since the war started the government has forbidden sackmakers to trade with neutral countries through which sacks might be sent to the enemy. Sacks are thus contraband of war.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors prescribed a little disease and prescribing local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They cost one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

One day when the administration of James Buchanan was young there was a stormy meeting of the cabinet that lasted for an hour or more. The legend goes that when the meeting adjourned, Mr. Cobb, secretary of the treasury, was asked what the row was about. "Oh, nothing," he replied, "only old Buck was trying to be against the administration." Doubtless nothing of the kind ever occurred, but it made a rather good story for the newspapers and gave the country a good laugh.—Savoyard.

SEE WHAT The Union Central WILL DO FOR YOU

As Compared WITH OTHER COMPANIES

No sensible man would undertake to buy property without first investigating the security and the cost. This precaution should be exercised especially in buying Life Insurance, as this estate will be settled with widows and orphans, probably thirty or forty years hence. The very best security is not too good to surround the estate of your loved ones. Below we are making some comparisons in rates for three of the popular forms of Life Insurance with some of the leading companies of the country. All of which we regard as safe so far as security is concerned but look at the wide difference in premium rates. The Ohio, Massachusetts and New York, and other Insurance Departments show beyond controversy that Policy holders in the Union Central pay less for their insurance than policy holders in other companies. As to the security that the Union Central offers, we will respectfully call your attention to our 1915 Report. (See recently published financial statement of Company.) The company issues all modern forms of Life Insurance. Before purchasing your insurance, you should certainly let us show you what we have, and if we cannot show you where we can save you money, we will advise you to buy your insurance elsewhere.

GOOD COTTON PRODUCTION.

Two "generations" of cotton produced on the same soil, one bale having been grown from the seed of the first one ginned in the year, is the record of the Ivey ranch, near Calexico. This ranch produced the earliest bale to be ginned in the United States, on June 17, 1914. Taking the seed from the record bale, they planted it on the same acre and on October 15, 1914, had the second bale ginned.

AN UNDERSTUDY.

"So you have employed a chauffeur?"

"Yes," replied Mr. Chuggins.

"That's true. I don't feel much like letting the chauffeur run the car. I keep him on hand to take the blame when it doesn't run to suit my family."

PUBLIC HIGHWAYS

PROCESS IN ROAD BUILDING

Various Steps in Construction of Highways Described—Concrete, Gravel and Brick Mentioned.

Highway improvement, like the growth of population, should be progressive, argues a student of the subject. Each should be suited to the requirements of its period, says Cleveland Leader. This contemplates, first the proper locating, grading and drainage of the sub-base, which are essential to any good road.

Sand-Clay Mixture With an Insufficient Amount of Sand, the Grains Not Being in Contact.

This sub-base can be used as an earth road during the years when traffic is light and can be kept in serviceable condition by dragging after spring and fall rains at a cost of $30 a year a mile.

The second step is to make a gravel road, when travel increases or funds become available, by applying several inches of sharp, clean gravel after dragging and rolling the earth road. This can be done in most places for a few hundred dollars a mile, and maintenance will cost about one hundred dollars a mile.

When the gravel road is outgrown, it forms an excellent foundation for a concrete surface. It is only necessary to loosen the gravel and roll it to uniform compactness, then lay a course of hydraulic concrete to carry heavy traffic. The surface construction costs approximately $1.50 a square yard. Maintenance should not average more than $50 a mile.

The final step in progressive road building, when heavy teaming and trucking predominate, is to lay a course of vitrified brick or granite sets grouted with cement on a sand cushion on top of the concrete. Or, if part of the road should become a residence street or be set apart as a boulevard, a quiet pavement of wood blocks, sheet asphalt or asphalt blocks can be laid on the concrete.

This is the most practical and economical plan, providing for varying volumes and kinds of traffic over a century or more of use and involving loss of investment in pavements that are excessively costly to maintain and which are not essential as a foundation in the final type of highway.

Gravel Improves Roads.

Where gravel is abundant roads may be greatly improved by spreading a layer of the same on a central space in the road. This space should be not less than say twelve feet wide. If the gravel is suitable, two to three inches of it will tend to firm the roadbed. Of course the ideal way where the materials are suitable and the expense can be borne is to remove the earth from this central portion and nearly fill the depression with small stones. Then cover with two or three inches of earth and over this spread the gravel. A good road is thus made and one that lasts, but this can only be done where such material is plentiful.

Keep Water From Road.

Where a road runs along a hill, the water must be kept from running upon the road. The side ditch must be ample and, if necessary, a string of tile put three feet or more below the bottom of the ditch on the up-hill side, which will prevent seepage from below.

Instruction for Road Boss.

Every road boss should attend road school and read all he can about highway construction and main-

The only other man, as far as is known, who served in both armies during the Civil War is Capt. He went to Secretary of War Stanton and told him that he was a Kentuckian and disliked fighting against his own people. Stanton granted him an honorable discharge. Coming home, he entered Gen. John H. Morgan's cavalry, serving throughout the war. As he expressed it, "I am the only man living to be licked on both sides."

The police say she was convicted of a similar charge in Detroit and is wanted in Cincinnati, O., and Hartford, Pa.

SAVE VESSEL FROM SINKING

Sailors Have Two Methods of Stopping Leaks Caused by the Shells of the Enemy.

After the conflict Jack Tars have several methods of stopping the incoming water when a battleship has been hit below the water line. For instance, if a small hole has been made in the vessel's side, an apparatus like an umbrella is used. This is thrust through the hole, point first, and then drawn back so that it will open like an umbrella—leaving the canvas outside.

Of course the pressure of the water effectively forces the canvas against the ship's side, thus stopping the leak; but to make it more secure the handle of the umbrella, which is formed like a screw, is fastened by nut inside.

In the case of a bigger leak—when the ship has been stove in below the water line—a large mat made of canvas and oakum is used. This has to be fixed into position by means of ropes. But the fixing is not a very easy matter, as one rope has to be got right under the keel, to the other side of the ship, in order to drag the mat down to the hole. Two or three other ropes are also required at different angles to guide the mat to its right position.

American Walnut.

So beautiful and durable a wood as walnut never would have gone out of favor if it had been rightly handled. It was a victim of machine-made "decoration;" it was done to death by the meaningless curly cues with which it was "adorned." If the artisans of today will eschew such mistakes, abjure their effort to make wood glitter like glass and treat walnut as they do oak or mahogany, there is no reason why this peculiarly American product should not keep a high and permanent place in cabinetmaking.

ODD ANIMAL ON EXHIBITION

National Museum at Washington Has a Prize in Its Recently Acquired Gerenuk.

The National museum at Washington has put on exhibition a mounted gerenuk. This animal was brought in British East Africa by the Smithsonian African expedition of 1909-10, under the direction of Colonel Roosevelt, and is the first specimen of this odd gazelle to be exhibited in the collection of the museum.

In appearance the gerenuk is a peculiar mammal, resembling an antelope, and yet having such a long neck and such long, thin legs as to cause the layman to believe it must be related to the giraffe. However, it is a gazelle, scientifically termed the Lithocranius walleri, or Waller's gazelle. The body and head are like those of a gazelle, but the legs and neck are greatly elongated. Its natural habitat is in British East Africa. In the book, "Life Histories of African Game Animals," issued by Colonel Roosevelt and Edmund Heller, it is said that this animal is universally distributed in the region north of the Tana river and throughout Somaliland, where it is well known to every traveler.

KEEPING WIFEY DRESSED.

"Money isn't everything."

"No; there are ways of getting along. Take my case, for instance. I married into a family where there is a dressmaker. You have no idea what a help that is."

BAD HABIT.

"My little son began writing poetry when he was very young," said the proud mother.

"Well, why didn't you punish him then for it?" was the neighbor's only reply.

THEIR HOPE.

"I see where Great Britain has put a Fisher at the head of the navy."

"Yes; I suppose she thinks it is time for it to make a good catch."

DOWN ON HIM.

Betty—I noticed you didn't even rise when Borely entered.

Netty—Oh, I can't stand for him under any circumstances!—Judge.

TACT.

"They tell me you think hard of me."

"Well, since you ask me, I must say I do think you are a brick."

CUT OFF.

"I understand Boofles is connected with some of the best families."

"He was until recently. They severed the connection."

THEIR SORT.

"Coronation robes are generally magnificent affairs."

"Yes, and they're only reign coats, after all."

PICKLES AND GIN FOR BABY

Father Rebels at Diet and Successfully Asks Court for Custody of His Son.

Alleging that his wife, Mrs. Edith Fies, had fed her six-months-old son, Frank, pickles, and when told that pickles were not good for a baby, had replied that if the boy got cramps she would give him gin to drink, Joseph Fies, the child's father, asked Justice Nathan Bijur in the supreme court for the custody of the boy. The pickles and gin incidents were sworn to in an affidavit made by Mrs. Lottie Ullman and submitted by Fies.

Mr. Fies also told the court that last February, when the boy had chicken pox and had been ordered segregated by the board of health, he came home to find that the mother had put the child in bed with another child.

Fies contended that these incidents showed that the mother is not a proper guardian for her son, who is now three years old. Justice Bijur, after reading the affidavits, awarded the father the custody of the boy.—New York World.

The "Halingo."

I had never seen such a creature before. It stood about five feet high, evidently belonged to the ape family, and resembled a man more than anything else. These animals are of a brownish color except their faces, which are white. They walk erect on their hind feet, and the males possess a long white beard, which gives them a very peculiar appearance. The female carries her young in her arms, the same as a woman. The interior of Central America is the habitat; I do not know of any other jungles in which they are found. They are seldom seen in the day, they are very ferocious when cornered, and have enough muscular strength to outmatch a dozen men. The natives call this remarkable man-monkey the "Halingo," and regard it as an evil spirit.—Wide World Magazine.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Virtue of Good Manners.

Good manners, while costing little, accomplish much. They may perhaps be among the "little things," but who will not agree that it is just these little things that makes the big difference in our pleasure or pain, comfort or discomfort? They oil the wheels of life and cause them to run smoothly and noiselessly. To those who can command its varied scale, from genial warmth to icy frigidity, politeness is perhaps the most powerful weapon of defense and offense.

CASTORIA*NEGLECT SOURCE OF WEALTHPossible Income From Sugar Tree
Seems to Have Been Forgotten by Farmers.Science has turned its inquisitorial eye more than once on the sugar tree, but so far has failed to solve its mystery.
Investigation has merely recorded certain facts; it has not explained them.
It is known, for instance, that the sugar maple is far more particular than the uninitiated suspect.
For its sap to flow, nights must be cool, clear and still, with the temperature at least ten degrees below freezing;
the days must be warm and sunny, with the temperature rising to 30 degrees above freezing, and finally, there must be a fall of rain or of snow after four or five successive days of such weather or the sap will cease to flow.But there is hardly more of a mystery here than there is in the fact that the farmer who has the trees to tap fails to tap them. He needs no demonstration to prove to him that the weather conditions favorable for the flow of sugar sap are favorable for little work about the farm. And he needs surely, no reminder that an eager and profitable market awaits the product. Why, then, only half the product available is collected and why half of this natural resource is wasted is perplexing to the ordinary

Fish, Say Sailors.Came into New York as strange a story of a sea-made salad as ever drifted past quarantine to moorings.
It was told by sailors aboard the Italian freighter Francesco Ciampa, out of Palermo February 20 with an assorted cargo of lemons, olives, oils, spaghetti, macaroni, vermicelli, ravioli and what not.The stay of the Ciampa in the Mediterranean after leaving Palermo was a prolonged one, due to storms that buffeted the Italian and had her alternately wobbling over on beam ends or attempting to poise on her bowspirit's tip."Such a storm!" said the sailors' spokesman, Giuseppe Ferra, between mouthfuls of spaghetti. "Only by oil could we calm those seas that were wrecking us. Oil bags we put over were torn away and what could we use instead, now that all our oil was gone? There remained olive oil, precious to all of us, but over it went."The olive oil calmed the seas easily.
But there was so much seaweed floating about that it mixed with the oil and behold! we were in the midst of a salad. Soon every fish for miles around was headed our way. They finally nibbled up all the salad and we were able to move again. The storm had ceased and we passed through Gibraltar and so to New York."Preferred LocalsFrost-Proof Cabbage Plants at

In the Face of Worries.Here is a special reason for seeking society or the theater: Other people, in real life or on the stage (better in real life, of course, because there one has to talk back), can best pull one out of oneself when one's own powers are utterly inadequate. When actual causes of anxiety seem overwhelming, if one can be made to forget them for a time, hope comes into the ascendant.The best of all remedies is perhaps the most difficult, though not impossible.
It is to "rise superior" to your troubles—to convince yourself, lift yourself, force yourself into the feeling of directorship—of competent and confident directorship of all your affairs. Add "with God's help" if you want to; for that may back up our worthy intentions more even than our ancestors began to realize—whatever they professed to believe. This feeling of calm adequacy does much to secure adequacy, and what is of perhaps more importance, compels peace.—Un-

Marriage Solemnized at Home of Bride Near Bell.

Prof. Harvey Roberts, of Lewisport, Ky., and Miss Judith Boxley, of Bell Station, this county, were united in marriage at 6 o'clock p.m. Tuesday. The wedding occurred at the home of the bride and was witnessed by a limited number of the friends of the young people. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. P. Griffith, of Howell.

After a sumptuous dinner the couple came to this city and left at once for Lewisport, where they will reside.

The bride is the pretty and accomplished daughter of Mr. H. W. Boxley and is quite popular in Bell society circles. She has been a teacher in the county schools for several years.

The groom is a prominent young business man of Lewisport and has been a teacher in the schools of that section for several sessions.

The bride was the recipient of many handsome and costly presents and she was the honoree of numerous pre-nuptial social events.

Ouster Was Void.

Frankfort, Ky., April 28.—Judgment of the Scott circuit court in favor of Coucilmen T. J. Hambrick and J. W. Thacker, of Georgetown, in their suits to regain their seats in the Council, from which they were ousted, was affirmed by the Court of Appeals in an opinion by Judge Carroll. It was charged that Hambrick had attempted to sell or rent to the city a street sprinkler, though no contract was entered into, and Thacker had sold the city some kindling, a mop and broom, all for the price of $1.60, thereby violating an ordinance against a city officer having any contract relations with the city. Four of the seven Councilmen voted to oust Thacker, three of the remaining Councilmen voted to oust Hambrick. It requires three-fourths of the Councilmen to vacate an office, and the court held that the action was void, without going into the merits of the controversy over the transaction.

ANOTHER BOUT

Morgan and Nelson to Fight at Opera House Tonight.

Promoter J. L. Tobin has arranged another boxing bout, to take place tonight at the Opera House. The headliners will be Terry Nelson and "Reggie" Morgan, also known as the fighting lawyer.

Both are men of experience. Nelson has been in the game since 1907, has fought 243 battles, including a draw with Danny Goodman who later boxed Ad Wolgost to a no decision. His longest fight was 41 rounds with Jake Able at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

His last engagement was with Jack Morgan at Nashville last Monday night, in which he gave Morgan the finish in 6 rounds.

His opponent appeared at the same entertainment, and showed up well. This is the first time the two have met, and a good bout is anticipated. Some entertaining preliminaries will be offered.

It was only by repeated clubbing that it was landed. A two-pound perch had first taken the hook, and it had been swallowed by the cat.

Here is an interesting fact which may easily be verified: October always begins on the same day of the week as January, April as July, September as December; February, March and November begin on the same days. Oiled Streets.

There is a strong sentiment, that might possibly be called a demand, among many people of Nashville in favor of oiling the streets. The sprinkling process, closely, does not, in these days of multiplied motor vehicles, sufficiently subdue the dust, and something more effective is desired.

The improved process is favored quite earnestly by the owners of motor cars, but still more so by those who suffer from the clouds of dust with which many of these rapidly-moving vehicles fill the air.

It is a plain proposition that oil is a more effective agent than water in preventing dust. Paved streets that have been sprinkled, dry very rapidly in the summer sun, and the occupants of the dwellings with which these streets are lined, as well as the pedestrians on the sidewalks, suffer from the dust. Those in the vehicles suffer worse still. Oil is quite generally employed now, nor only on city streets in many of the progressive municipalities of the country, but largely on country roads. The only question about substituting oil for the sprinkling carts in Nashville should be one of cost.

A street once oiled will remain in good condition for a considerable time, while to water them, as is now done, necessitates going over the work with sprinklers from one to three times daily.

An investigation would probably show, on the whole, that it would cost but little if any more to keep the dust down with oil than it costs now to do it in an inferior way through the sprinkling system.

The city's financial condition, in view of the large bond issue and expenditures in contemplation, demands that economy be observed to meet the city's current obligations and pay interest on its bonds.

But if it be true, as contended by many who advocate oiling the streets, that the expense for the year round will be no greater than maintaining the sprinkling carts, then assuredly the plan of oiling the streets should be at once adopted. The present

SOLDIER OF CONFEDERACY

Passes Away at His Home in Kentucky Aged Seventy-seven Years.

Hickman, Ky., April 27.—Gen. Henry A. Tyler died at his country home at Oakwood farm today at 1 o'clock of Bright's disease and heart trouble. He was able to get out in his car for a ride one week ago, but his condition became worse three days ago, and his death was not unexpected.

General Tyler was one of the best-known men in the south and one of the wealthiest men in Western Kentucky. He was 77 years old the second day of this month. Until one year ago General Tyler was the commander-in-chief of all remaining Forrest troops, resigning on account of his health. For many years he had taken an active part in every Confederate reunion.

Healer Fined $50.

R. Maraj, a Hindu "magneto-medico healer" was arraigned in the County Court yesterday on the charge of practicing medicine without a license. It was proved that Maraj had delivered "medicine" to negro women in the county, one patient suffering from advanced tuberculosis. He had also signed insurance warrants with the initials M. D. after his name.

Maraj pleaded that he was a practitioner by virtue of a Federal copyright, giving him power to exercise his necromancy in all the states. The only cures he used were "magnetism, earth, sunshine and atmosphere." The bottle of medicine contained clay water, his school maintaining that since man is made of clay, defects and diseases should be cured by treatments with the same material.

The initials M. D., or as he said it should have been M. M. D., stood for words descriptive of his art.

His explanations were of no avail and he was fined $50 and costs.

No Use Wasting Money.

The charitable lady was treating a pensioner to set of false teeth. The pensioner picked out the cheapest set offered. "Don't you think it would be well to select better teeth while you are about it?" asked the lady. "I am perfectly willing to pay a little more and get good ones." "Oh, ma'am," lisped the pensioner. "What's the use of putting any more money into them? my husband will only knock down my throat the fifth time he gets real mad."

Story of Massacre.

Another wholesale massacre of Armenians by Mohammedans is reported by refugees. All of the inhabitants of ten villages have been put to death, 800 in one and 720 in another. Pools of blood still mark the execution place, after three weeks.

At the desolated Catholic mission at Hosrova, where 48 victims of the massacre were buried, Elizabeth Marcara, an American girl, told how she and young David Ishmu battled with the Kurds. Her story was later confirmed.

"When the Kurds burst the village gates," said Miss Marcara, "we took rifles and mounted to the roof. I fired 80 shots. The Kurds were forced to withdraw outside the village walls."

"There I killed two and David two. Later we killed four more, one of whom was the chief. The Kurds abandoned their plunder and carried off their dead."

"Reinforced, I fled with my relatives. We saw the Kurds pillaging Haftevan and fired on them, but they escaped with their booty."

"Near Dilman we were attacked by fifteen Kurds, of whom I killed one. After the Russians defeated the Kurds and Turks near Khot, a soldier told the Persian governor about me and he sent for me and offered me the chieftainship of a regiment of Turks if I would fight the Russians."
